Reactive vs Preventative Maintenance

- Equipment failure costs money for customers in terms of
 - Rework
 - Recalls
 - Warranty
 - Quality
 - Injuries
 - Temporary solutions
 - Repair and administration
 - Logistics and purchasing activities

By running a preventative maintenance and inspection program, a typical car plant can save more than $2 000 000/year

Near-term Outlook

Published October 24, 2007

The demand for Atlas Copco's products and services from most customer segments and regions is expected to remain at the current high level.

The positive outlook includes the main part of the construction segment, while construction related to housing is expected to slow down, primarily in North America.
